

“Jesus Came Eating and Drinking”

They say you can learn a lot about someone by watching how they eat—and with whom. Well, if that’s true, then Jesus’ meal schedule tells us volumes about who he is and what he came to do. Luke puts it bluntly: “The Son of Man came eating and drinking” (Luke 7:34). Not preaching and fasting (though he did that too). Not climbing mountains or writing scrolls. Nope—eating and drinking!

Jesus didn’t just share food. He shared life. He reclined at tables with tax collectors (Luke 5:27–32), sinners (Luke 15:1–2), Pharisees (Luke 11:37), close friends like Mary, Martha, and Lazarus (John 12:1–3), and even invited himself over to Zacchaeus’ house for dinner (Luke 19:1–10). He turned water into wine at a wedding (John 2), multiplied loaves and fishes at a picnic of 5,000-plus (Luke 9), and broke bread with disciples after the resurrection (Luke 24). You could say his calendar was filled with holy happy hours.

In fact, one theologian quipped that in Luke’s Gospel, “Jesus is either going to a meal, at a meal, or coming from a meal.” Amen and pass the hummus.

But these weren’t just dinner parties. These were spiritual revolutions served with a side of grace. In a culture where who you ate with determined your status, Jesus smashed the social seating chart. He invited the broken, the outcast, and the confused to his table—not as an afterthought, but as the main course of his mission.

Meals, for Jesus, were sacred spaces for transformation. Around tables, forgiveness was offered, identities were restored, and hope was dished out generously. Communion, our most sacred sacrament, began as a shared supper—the Last Supper.

Let’s be honest: there’s something deeply human, deeply divine, and deeply delicious about gathering around a table. It’s no wonder Jesus spent so much time there. He taught us that the kingdom of God looks a lot like a feast where everyone’s invited and no one eats alone.

So as we dig into this new sermon series, come hungry—not just for food, but for community, for purpose, for the presence of Jesus who still invites us to the table.

Because, friends... Jesus ate and drank his way to saving the world.

Bon appétit!
See you Sunday!

This Is the Day by Tim Tebow

Have you ever felt stuck?

Sometimes life feels rigid—as if nothing could ever really change. Maybe we're afraid of taking a step of faith. Maybe we're too injured from the past to move forward. Or maybe life threw us a curveball and we still don't know how to react.

No matter where you find yourself, you can make the most of today. In this inspirational series, Heisman Trophy winner Tim Tebow shares stories from his life to illustrate what it means to seize each day for God's glory. He challenges us to step out in courage because this is the day to act.

Healing Relationships

We all experience broken relationships in our lives. From short-lived fights with a friend to a decade-long silence between family members, these fractures cause deep pain in our lives. Whether we've been hurt or hurt someone else, Jesus has provided a powerful pathway to healing through forgiveness and repentance.

While many of us have been told to forgive or repent through gritted teeth and willpower, few of us have been shown how to offer forgiveness or repentance that overflows from our new hearts. Jesus has created us for deep, abiding relationships that not only withstand conflict, but grow stronger through it.

This four-part study guides you through video stories, discussion questions, readings, and reflection on scripture. Join us as we pursue reconciliation, restoration, and healing in our relationships.

Happy Father's Day! ❤️

Men: Navigating Everything

The most popular searches on my YouTube channel are various terms that relate to how to be a better father, husband, or boyfriend. It is evident that the desire to better oneself in this area is of great interest. The next step beyond a desire to grow in this area, is the question of how to achieve this.

I love the quote from Alan Watts, "You're under no obligation to be the same person you were 5 minutes ago". This type of encouragement to grow and change throughout our lives is just the type of motivation we need to take the next step in becoming a better version of ourselves.

Are you ready for an empowering challenge to make improvements in your life? We are all on a journey of self-discovery and I would like to share my 24 years of speaking and leadership experience to help you take the next step in yours. I want to equip and empower you to move towards your best self and give you practical strategies to get there. I will walk you through 8 areas, teaching you how to score yourself in each, with a unique flywheel tool focusing on physical health, mental health, spiritual health, marriage, parenting, sexuality, finances, and loneliness. We will then use the results of this assessment to break down clear and applicable ways to make progress in those areas.

I would love for you to join me in this important discussion, either on your own or with a small group. You'll be glad you took the next step in your journey of self-discovery!
